Subject: toxic algae

Limits should be set for toxic algae.

The state's blue green algae task force created by Gov. Ron DeSantis is calling for limits on the toxic algae. In October, the task force concluded a six-month review recommending limits as well as increasing research into the chronic and acute health affects from exposure to algae.

"Defensible health advisories should be established by the Florida Department of Health and defensible water quality criteria should be established by the Florida Department of Environmental Protection," the task force wrote

Bottom line, if we lose our environment, our tourist business will suffer badly, & create a ripple effect. Let's attack this problem. Where it is caused by farm runoff, let's get the source to be more responsible with its waste.
